Jameson H. Acos is a litigator at Presidio Law Firm LLP. He represents clients in insurance bad faith matters, commercial litigation, catastrophic injury cases, and other high-stakes disputes, including matters involving significant personal loss.

Jameson handles all phases of litigation, including case assessment and trial strategy, coverage analysis, discovery and motion practice, settlement, and trial. He brings strategic thinking, disciplined execution, and practical judgment, with particular strength in translating disputes over insurance policies, statutes, contracts, and case law into clear legal positions.

Jameson is skilled at helping clients understand legal exposure and practical business risk. He uses advanced analytical tools to improve efficiency in factual investigation, discovery and ESI.

Before joining Presidio Law Firm, Jameson built his practice handling first- and third-party insurance coverage matters, commercial disputes, and personal injury litigation on both the plaintiff and defense sides. That breadth of his experience helps him evaluate cases from all angles, anticipate opposing strategies, and prepare for litigation against major corporations, large law firms, and insurance carriers to secure meaningful recoveries and favorable results.

Jameson remains steady under pressure. Whether counseling someone who has suffered a life changing injury or advising a business facing significant litigation risk, he focuses on practical guidance, careful preparation, and reliable execution. His work reflects Presidio Law Firm's mission to protect, secure, and advance what clients have built—and to help them rebuild when everything is on the line—with precision, vigilance, and results.
